An action programme to provide higher education for children in rural India

Greetings!

What a wise decision to postpone Sunita's marriage

Sunita was a pupil of our Guria school where she made it all the way through to grade 12 and passed out with flying colours. She went on to join the Institute of Engineering and Rural Technology in Prayagraj, Uttar Pradesh, one of the best colleges in India, to study plastic engineering. She has now been appointed chairman of her stream and becomes the first female to do so.

However, it might never have happened. When Sunita was in the later stages of her education with us, her parents wanted to take her out of school after grade 12 for an arranged marriage. Anne Gilmour, our Educational Trustee, talked to her parents and convinced them to postpone the marriage as Sunita had such good prospects. Her parents went along with this and now Sunita is all set to have a spectacular career.
